Hubbard And Voorhees.

Booneville, Ind., Oct. 27.—Today one of the greatest and most enthusiastic democratic mass meetings ever held in southern Indiana was addressed by ex-Governor Richard B. Hubbard of Texas and Senator Dan Voorhees of this state. Many thousands were present. Governor Hubbard spoke first. His speech on the tariff and the force bill, his defense of the democratic party his eulogy on Cleveland and Stevenson aroused the democracy as never before.

Senator Voorhees spoke last, and in referring to Governor Hubbard said: "Indiana democrats have just listened, spell bound, to one of the greatest orators of the republic and his masterly discussion of the great issues leaves me but little to say. It will be long remembered by you, and, fellow citizens, I heard him in the great campaign of 1880 and 1884 in Indiana, and his famous speech when chairman of the Chicago convention of 1884, and I congratulate our state and our country that his powers and his services are with us in this great contest." Senator Voorhees then made one of his old-time speeches and his discussion of national issues was equal to the standard of his palmy days.

Governor Hubbard goes to Missouri on the 30th instant by request of the state democratic committee of Missouri to speak until the 6th of November, following Governor McKinley on his recent tour in that state.

A Battle of Elephants.

Peru, Ind., Oct. 27.—A battle royal occurred yesterday at Wallace's winter quarters, 25 miles east of this city, in which five large elephants were the participants. For some time an animosity has existed between Prince and Diamond, two great beasts of the herd, which culminated in the absence of Keeper Sweeney. Diamond, with a weight of four tons, was the aggressor, but Prince was his match, and succeeded in breaking his tusk and fairly crowding him through the heavy brick wall of the building which fell upon them. All the elephants broke loose from their chains and engaged in the melee. For half an hour pandemonium reigned. Quiet was finally restored, but not before the elephants were badly hurt. The place presented the appearance of a slaughter-house. The noise made by the herd could be heard a mile.

A Faithful Negro.

Chillicothe, Mo. Oct. 27.—Geo. Jones a highly respected colored citizen, for 15 years janitor of the public school buildings, was buried today. Mr. Jones was born a slave, and when a boy, during the war, achieved local fame, refusing while a rope was around his neck to divulge the hiding place of his young master, a returned Confederate soldier, and to whom he was warmly attached. The school board and hundreds of other white people attended the funeral.

Mr. Cleveland at His Desk.

New York, Oct. 26.—Ex-President Cleveland went down to his law office in the Mills Building this forenoon and remained there attending to his law business during business hours. Having completed the work of moving into his new home at 12 West Fifty first street he will now spend a portion of each day at his office.

The Lord Will Provide.

Amarillo Northwestern. A Georgia girl, said to be worth a round half million, has just married a penniless country newspaper editor. That's business. No one is more in need of half a million than the poor country newspaper man.

The New Postal Cards.

Washington, Oct. 28.—The new postal card with paid reply was yesterday placed on sale at all first class postoffices throughout the country.

It Was Professional.

This story is going the rounds about Lawyer Joseph H. Choate says the New York Commercial-Advertiser.

Some weeks ago, while Mr. Choate was out of town, a man called at his office to retain him in a case. He saw the managing clerk and left a retaining fee of only $100.

Upon his return Mr. Choate was talking over the matter with the clerk.

"What retainer did he leave?" asked Mr. Choate.

"Only $100," replied the clerk.

"But that's not professional. My retainer is $500, and not a cent less" grumbled the lawyer.

"Well, I took all he had," responded the clerk, meekly.

"Yes, that's professional," said Mr. Choate, laughing.

A Canadian athlete recently walked across Niagara Falls on a wire and next summer he proposes to repeat the performance with a newspaper man on his back. If he will make the effort at once and allow us to select the newspaper man ample arrangements will be made to meet the expenses of the funeral in case of accident.—Hous-ton Post.

The editor of the Post sees that Hogg is defeated, and, instead of committing suicide, volunteers to be the newspaper man on the athlete's back. He may have saved up his small change to pay funeral expenses, but his course as a politician has been so erratic of late jumping from one side to the other that any sensible wire walker would refuse to carry him even on a first class, 60 foot road.—Cuero Bulletin.

Leif Erikson.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 27.—While all the rest of the world has been engaged in celebrating the achievements of Columbus, the Norwegians of Chicago have been quietly making preparations to honor the memory of their countryman, Leif Erikson who, they claim, was the real discoverer of the new world in the year 1008. Several thousand Norwegians crowded into Scandia hall this afternoon to listen to song and story and eulogy of their countryman. Many stores and dwellings in the neighborhood were decorated in profusion. A street procession of Scandinavians preceded the meeting. Tonight there was another celebration, a grape eating festival, in memory of Erikson's legendary vineland. Members of the association, which is having a $30,000 painting of Erikson made for the world's fair, were present.

Charles Remi's Suicide.

Laredo, Tex., Oct. 27.—The people of Laredo were astonished to learn that a telegram had been received from San Antonio Tuesday announcing the suicide of Charles Remi of Laredo at the St. Leonard hotel in San Antonio. His wife ignores the theory that he committed suicide. His domestic relations were of the most felicitous character, and his financial condition is reported as being good, and he carried a $5000 insurance on his life in the Mutual life company. His body arrived here last evening. Besides owning considerable property in this city, including the Remi hotel, he is said to hold $10,000 worth of property in Wyoming. He was an Odd Fellow and 56 years of age.

Little Boy: Teacher said the Emperor of China has 10 men to carry his umbrella. Wot's that for? Papa thoughtfully: I suppose it takes that many to remember to bring it along.—Good News.

Guest: Bah! is this filtered water? Chicago Waiter: Yes, sir. Guest: Phew! Give me some unfiltered then. Waiter (loudly to cook): Glass of unfiltered water an' a spoon.—New York Weekly.

They were talking of the intelligence of animals. "I have seen a hog count," he said. "So have I," said she. "I have seen him see two seats in a car and take them both himself.—Detroit Free Press."

Tried to Bribe a Printer.

Rochester, N. Y., October 28.—The Democrat and Chronicle prints this morning a story of an attempt to bribe a printer employed in the office where the official ballots for Monroe and Orleans counties are being printed to mark the republican ballots, or a portion of them, in such way that they will be thrown out when they come to be counted.
